

Saturday 2nd June.

Well the first day dawned. Today was the start of the big adventure. Had lots to get done, go to get Paul's mum's spare phone - I would only need to get a simm card. Then to get some printing done, some insect bombs for the house, some shopping - a last minute decision to buy a new bag for my hand luggage, a haircut. When Alyson turned up I then emptied the fridge/freezer, got all my travel stuff out of the house, then set off the insect bombs. closing the door I have no key, so too late to get anything else. Paul has my spare house key, so can get in if needed.

Alyson drove me to the airport, and there I realised I forgot a mobile phone I had borrowed, well will hae to fix that in the UK. The new PC and camera, well haven't really used them so hoped it all worked. In the passenger lounge I realised I had a A380 as the plane - that's was a wow !

The flight is a long one. About a 2 our stopover at Singapore where I pulled out the laptop to start some basic notes of my 'adventure', hoping to do this every night. Leaving Singapore its was the long stretch to Heathrow. Both legs I had different neighbours, the UK leg a couple returning home, so were asked just one or two practical questions !

The A380 was big and had a good inflight entertainment system.It really helped pass the time. Dozed rather than slept. We arrived about 5am, and I were in another world. Daylight and the run into Heathrow. It was a new day so.....

The A380 I flew on Melbourne-London. Not the fine misty morning - and it stayed like that all day....
